

Coffee party on the
International Day to Abolish Violence against Women

SEX WORK = VIOLENCE?

How the sex workers' rights movement confronts violence against prostitutes

Contrary to some claims, sex work does not equal violence.

Nevertheless, there exists far too much violence against sex workers, as in society in general.

Now, as before, the sex workers' rights movement fights this violence, which comes from pimps and johns, as well as from the structural violence of legislation and society.

The following persons will talk about the strategies sex workers plan to adopt to fight this violence:

- Dante Dionys | escort, porn-performer, activist
- Stephanie Klee | sex worker, move e.V., profiS
- Representative of the Peer-to-Peer Project, Hydra
- Representative of trans*sexworks (requested)

After short inputs, there will be space for discussions and chats.

We will provide coffee, tea and cookies.
